Graduation Exercises of the "Rah! Rah! R-em! Rah! Rah! R-er! Rah! Rah! E-R-S-O-N!"

That was about what the spectators who gathered at the National Rifles' Hall last night made out of a wild shout that occasionally rent the air. The event was the forty-second annual commencement of the Emerson Institute and the young gentlemen who did the shouting were the students of the institute, who resorted to this means of giving vert to their enthusiasm for their school and their joy at reaching vacation time. The hall was well filled with the parents and friends of the members of the school. The program comprised a num-ber of declamations and recitations, and ber of declamations and recitations, and two dramatic productions. Mr. A. R. Stuart delivered the salutatory and Mr. Edward Maddox the valedictory. The rhetorical exercises were of more than ordinary interest because they were made the test for the awarding of three medals for excellence in elecution. The young gentlemen who took part and their selections were as follows: Touissaint l'Ouverture, P. C. Stickney; Spartacus to Gladiators at Etru-

Stickney; Spartacus to Gladiators at Etruria, Herbert Kaufman; Dime Museum, Paul Peck; St. George and the Dragon, J. F. Barnes; Marse Chan, J. Mandeville Carlisle; the Brave Hussar, Phil. Hichborn; Jim Brown's Sister's Wedding, Earl Godwin; Battle of Ivry, Carson Breckinridge; American Battle Flags, Fred Schade; Smiting the Rock, Earl Hutchison.

Three medals were given likewise for the best acting in the plays. The one-act farce of "Box and Cox" was presented by Messrs. Max Wiehle, Pratt Minnix and Gienn Jones. A play, entitled "Sketches in India," was produced in a most creditable manner by Messrs. Herman Schade, Howard Boyle, Clarence Ergood, James L. Norris, jr., Max Wiehle, Herbert Kaufman, ris, Jr., Max Wiehle, Herbert Kaufman, Mayo Cabell, Walter Ergood and John M. Hall. The first prize in declamation was awarded to Fred Schade, the second to J. F. Barnes and the third to J. Mandeville Carlisie. Honorable mention was made of Earl Godwin and Paul Peck. To Mr. Her-bert Kaufman was awarded the first prize in acting, while the second went to Her-man Schade and the third to Clarence Ergood. At the close of the evening Prof. Charles B. Young, the principal of the institute, announced the awards of medals and prizes for scholarship as follows:
In the senior department—First Pinkney medal (Dr. J. M. Bulkley's gift), Albert R. Stuart; second Pinkney medal, Edward Maddox; gold medals for scholarships, Jas. L. Norris, jr., J. Fauntieroy Barnes and J. Mandeville Carlisle; silver medals for schol-arship, Max Wiehle, Clarence Ergood and

The annual commencement exercises of the Normal School took place this morning at 10 o'clock in one of the large rooms at the Franklin building. On a raised platform sat more than two score pretty girls clad a picture of grace and beauty that one does not often have a chance to see. In a crowd like this the presence of one dark garbed young man was all the more noticeable. He was the only male member of the class of '94 from the school which turns out the young teachers for the Dis-

The exercises of commencement rather brief and of a somewhat informal character, but none the less attractive on this account to the large audience of friends and relatives of the graduates. The room was tastefully decorated with palms and garlands of spring flowers and presented a very pleasant appearance. The program consisted principally of two addresses to the graduates, which were full of good advice to the embryo teachers in their new field of usefulness.

The Graduating Class. The members of the graduating class commencement, and introduced the exerof a period in which these young people have done what is to them a really great work. He said that as they were all graduates of the high schools, it was particularly appro-priate that they should be addressed by the principal of that institution, Dr. F. R. Lane, who always keeps a watchful eye on the progress of the young people who have graduated under his care. Dr. Lane's ad-dress was preceded by a piano solo by Mr.

Dr. Lane's remarks to the class were full value even to experienced teachers. He position in the world, and expressed the hope and the confidence that his hearers would all appreciate it, too. In years gone by, he said, he had spoken of character training as of velopment. This year, however, he would speak of the training along other lines that was particularly desirable for a teacher There were some things that he felt called upon to warn them against. In the first place, he must tell them to beware of books and to remember always that these are the means to the goal, and not the end itself.

There is a certain class of dreamers, Dr. founded a philosophy, but he was a pitiable improvident and impractical man.

The question what becomes of the pins in this world is as old as the hills, and yet today we might follow it up with another question as to what becomes of all the valedictorians of the land. From their intellectual superiority one would expect them to lead in all branches of the world, but they do not one trouble is that they but they do not. One trouble is that they do not know the humanity that is all about them, and their ignorance in this more than counterbalances their along other lines. For the most part, they are unable to do anything of value with what they really know. There is a great difference to be noted between the present generation of teachers and the past. There has been an equally great improvement in their methods. In other days the teacher was usually referred to as the "school marm," and there was just a tinge of re-proach in the term, because they were so narrow in their views and methods. Their horizon was bounded by the four walls of their school room, and their idea of their duty was to instill as many facts into the minds of the students as they could, re-gardless of everything else.

How to Use Books. "To you members of the class of '94," continued Dr. Lane, "I would say again, use books, but use them as a means and not as an end. Above all else, study the bustling energy of human life all about Know your business whatever it may be, and know it well. If you are a teacher know how to teach, and teach to the best of your abilteach, and teach to the best of your abil-ity. Make a careful study of each one of the individual children entrusted to your care. Make a study of his character, his temperament and the tendencies that come from heredity. By knowing each one of the children so thoroughly and by under-standing each one's particular needs, you can soon do with that class easily and pleasantly more than you could ever see pleasantly more than you could ever ac-complish by all the severe discipline in the

Dr. Lane's little speech was received with the closest attention, especially by the class, and was heartly applauded. At its conclusion Prof. Anton Kaspar played delightfully on the violin, accompanied Principal Freeman's Remarks. Another brief address to the graduates was delivered by Mr. J. T. Freeman, one of the supervising principals of the public schools. He told them that their success as teachers would depend largely upon their ability to comprehend the conditions with which they were surrounded, and to utilize the means at their disposal. Their duty was not simply to cram facts into the minds of their pupils. It was far higher than that, and, above all, they should teach the children to be honest. They should never be ashamed of their profession, keeping in mind always the example of Him who was the Great Teacher.

Music by Prof. Kaspar and Mr. Mayo closed an interesting program, and the certificates were distributed by Dr. Witmer of the board of education in a few well-chosen and timely words. At the conclusion of th entertained by the graduates with light re freshments, served in an adjoining room.

HOLY CROSS ACADEMY. Interesting Closing Exercises Held in

Metzerott Hall Yesterday.

The closing exercises of the Academy of the Holy Cross yesterday afternoon at Metzerott Hall were attended by a very large gathering of friends of the school, as well as the parents of the pupils. At least forty clergymen were seated on the stage, and were delighted spectators of the entertainment. The program, which was well varied, gave both the advanced and younger pupils opportunities to display most gracefully their accomplishments in music, instrumental and vocal, and in elocution. Two large American flags draped

The elocution class, consisting of thirty-five young misses, recited in concert, "Music on the Rappahannock." They were dressed in white, with blue sashes and liberty caps, and each carried a flag, the stars and stripes and the stars and bars alternating. A series of evolutions, marches and countermarches, forming many graceful figures, were first gone through, the and countermarches, forming many grace-ful figures, were first gone through, the pleasing effect being greatly heightened by colored calcium lights thrown upon the darkened stage. "Lost in Fairy Land" was a charming little drama participated in by a number of small children. The fairies, crowned with flowers and glittering with spangles, made a beautiful picture, while their singing, dancing and marching was simply perfect and elicited the greatest applause. The vocal class, copsisting of seventeen young ladies, sang Strauss' bird song. "Morning is Nigh;" the Misses E. Kelcher and N. and M. Duffy, a violin trio; a recitation by Miss Bertha Burns, "Gualbroto's Vision;" "Fest" (Lentner), by the Misses Moreland, Fowler, Schwartz and Berberich; "Barcarola" (Campana), by Misses Palmer, Rudden, Small, Keleher, Green and Fowler; "Reverie" (Henlein), mandolins, Misses McHugh, and Small; guitars, Misses Shea, Mulcahy and N. The Leon Trial. This morning the case of Edward Leon, charged with murdering, by abortion, the unnamed child of Miss Estelle Beach, on the 31rt of October last, was called before Judge Cole, in Criminal Court No. 1. Very little progress was made, however, for but nine men remained in the jury box when the regular panel of twenty-six men had been examined as to their qualifications. These were John W. Lyons, Leonard C. These were John W. Lyons, Leonard C. Isaley, John W. Taylor, John M. Washington, Enoch Edmonston, John Kelly, John W. Cox, Wm. J. Ray and Chas. D. Knight.

After Judge Cele, upon the petition of the defendant, had authorized the summoning of a number of witnesses on behalf of the prisoner, at the expense of the government, the clerk was directed to have summoned at 10 o'clock tomorrow one hundred talesmen out of whom to complete the turn talesmen-out of whom to complete the jury. The trial was then adjourned until that Miss Pollard has been living here in retirement since the close of her breach of promise suit and has not left the city. When she goes upon the street it is invariably in the company of Mrs. Ellis, the sister of the Episcopalian order who was her constant attendant during the trial and who cared for her during the illness which followed that ordeal.

Wants Damages for a Dog's Bite. On the 27th of last April, so alleges Frederick Zeller, in a suit filed by him yesterday afternoon against Henry Fetter, Mr. Fetter entered the former's tailor shop, 607 Louisiana avenue, with a snappish, venomous black Spitz dog. A disturbance arising among some canary birds in the shop, Mr. Zeller started to quell it. In doing so the dog attacked him and bit his left shin-bone. The wound resulted in suppuration and ulcefation, and still requires treatment. The plaintiff also states that his wife, while dressing his wound become infected with poison from wound, became infected with poison from it, and required medical care for eight or ten days. He therefore claims damages to
